Book Read: November 15
First Draft: completed in class
Final Draft: TBD

November/December Book Report
Book Review – The Family Under the Bridge

Book Review:

A book review is written to persuade someone to feel the same way you do about a book. When you write a book review, you always give your opinion of the book, hoping to persuade the reader to agree with your opinion.

Directions:

This month, each student will be reading the same book. They received a school copy of The Family Under the Bridge. Please treat this book well.

At the end of the month, students will be guided in how to write a book review in class. Students will write a plan, draft, and revision in class. However, their final draft must be completed at home to be turned in as their book report. The book review should be 4 paragraphs in length and include the student's opinion, two paragraphs supporting why they have this opinion, and a paragraph that gives their recommendation for the book.
